SUBJECT:

Comments on "Plan for Development of Tactical Fusion Centers"

1. If the plan is accepted as an input to the overall DoD Master Plan for Intelligence Support to Tactical Commanders, it serves that purpose. If it is read alone, it lacks substantive information on requirements, i.e., it appears to be "technology push" rather than "demand pull".

2. The lack of consideration of tactical inputs from national fusion centers may well pose a serious interface problem in the future, even though the doctrine and concept is included in the Master Plan.
